

50 Business Directories for Marketing Your Books

Be listed in the electronic yellow pages

Since the paper version of the Yellow pages are pretty much defunct, it makes sense that you and your web site should be properly listed and represented in as many on-line directories as possible because you never know where people will look for your books.

Today, people are turning to the internet as a way to find the things they want.

One way self-publishers can get found is through inclusion in online directories.

Adding a listing to these online directories is easy, but if you only list in a few, you're really missing a huge opportunity to get found by online searchers.

Every individual directory that you submit to is another chance to get found online, so it's important to make sure you're listed in every directory possible.

Note: each of the listings shown below are hot linked so you need only click on them to visit their web site)

Before you submit your site, be sure to review each directory's guidelines and fee structure, if any.

Submitting your site doesn't take long and many directories offer free listings.

Note, however, that most directories do not accept every site submitted. Remember to follow submission guidelines, and check back to make sure your listing is error-free.
